on Aging

Older people deserve honor and respect... not abuse.

Old age is a time to treasure. But for some older people, it is a time for tears. No one talks much about elder abuse. It is kept hidden behind drawn curtains and shuttered windows. But like other forms of abuse, elder abuse happens in all communities, among all races and all nationalities.

What is elder abuse?

Elder abuse occurs when someone takes the money needed by an older person to live.

Elder abuse occurs when a caregiver fails to provide an older person with adequate food, water or medical care.

Elder abuse is violence, theft, neglect. And elder abuse will happen again and again in our communities unless caring people do something to make it stop. Most of us have older family members and know older adults who live in our communities.

There are many ways you can show older people honor and respect.

Do...

- ▶ Visit regularly.
- ▶ Keep track of medicines and doctors' visits.
- ▶ Help financially, if necessary.
- ▶ Honor their trust.
- ▶ Respect their feelings.
- ▶ Provide adequate care.

Don't...

- ▶ Treat them like children.
- ▶ Strike, hit or push.
- ▶ “Borrow” their money.
- ▶ Speak to them harshly.
